

Student New Angle Prize (SNAP) 2018

Associated with the New Angle Prize for Literature, the organisers have instigated a writing prize for Students of University Campus Suffolk (UCS) sponsored by the Ipswich Institute.

The Student New Angle Prize (SNAP) is an annual award for a piece of new writing (of 500 words) with an East Anglian connection: theme, topic, influence or association. It is organised in conjunction with the English department of UCS.

The winner of the 2018 SNAP award has been announced.

BA (Hons) English student Jayd Green has won the top prize for her poem 'Dunwich Woods'

The runner up prize goes to fellow BA (Hons) English student, Matt Annis, for 'The Button Boy'.

Details of the competition and the text of the winning entries can be found at:

<https://www.uos.ac.uk/news/writing-competition-winners-announced-0>

